A Changed View of a Changed Man.

~~I am completely discouraged, after trying so called specialists and different advertised remedies, I feel that I am getting worse instead of better and have about given up hope of ever being cured of my kidney trouble.~~

I have changed my mind, for, after reading of the positive guarantee of Foley's Kidney Cure, as a forlorn hope I tried a bottle, and the result was so favorable that I continued its use until I had taken three bottles which effected a thorough cure, and I am a changed man.

Why H. S. Stout Succeeds.

Here are a few reasons why H. S. Stout has succeeded in building up the largest tailoring business in Paris:

FIRST—He recognized the fact that five years ago that the only day of big profits and small sales was past.

SECOND—He cuts the price of tailor-made garments at least 40 PER CENT.

THIRD—He kept up the quality of his materials, his styles and his workmanship.

FOURTH—He always does as he advertised.

AS A RESULT.

As a result of this system he has built up a large trade that appreciates the fact that they save twenty dollars on a single Suit or Overcoat. "Many customers at a small profit rather than a few customers at a big profit," says H. S. Stout.

If you want credit, your high-price tailor gladly extends it, for he makes you pay dearly for it in the end.

Why not turn over a new leaf—wear the best, save money, by giving H. S. Stout a trial?

Oh, the Pain of Rheumatism!

Rheumatism often causes the most intense suffering. Many have for years vainly sought relief from this disabling disease, and are to-day worse off than ever. Rheumatism is a blood disease, and Swift's Specific is the only cure, because it is the only remedy which can reach such deep-seated diseases.

A few years ago I was taken with inflammatory Rheumatism, which became so intense that I was for weeks unable to walk. I tried several prominent physicians and took their treatment faithfully, but was unable to get the slightest relief. In fact, my condition seemed to grow worse, the disease spread over my entire body, and from November to March I suffered agony. I tried many patent medicines, but none relieved me. Upon the advice of a friend I decided to try

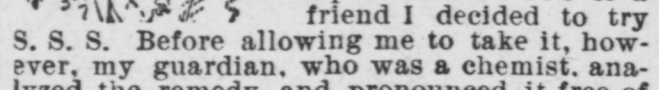

S. S. S. Before allowing me to take it, however, my guardian, who was a chemist, analyzed the remedy, and pronounced it free of potash or mercury. I felt so much better after taking two bottles, that I continued the remedy, and in two months I was cured completely. The cure was permanent, for I have never since had a touch of Rheumatism though many times exposed to damp and cold weather.

MERRIMAC SUNK

Destroyed by a Spanish Torpedo in the Santiago Harbor.

Disaster to American Fleet Is Reported Through Spanish Sources.

It Is Said Eight of the Crew Escaped Drowning But Were Taken Prisoners.

American Reports Say Sampson Purposely Sank the Boat in the Channel.

And That No Lives Were Lost—Washington Authorities Believe This Correct, and That Cervera Is Now Held a Prisoner at Santiago de Cuba.

PORT AU PRINCE, June 4.—Friday morning at 8 o'clock the American squadron again began a bombardment of the fortifications of Santiago de Cuba and a lively cannonade ensued for two hours, which silenced the Spanish batteries.

PERSPECTIVE OF SANTIAGO DE CUBA.

1—Morro castle. 7—Cabanillas bay. 13—Cubera. 19—Point Duan. 2—La Socapa. 8—Cajuma bay. 14—Aguada river. 20—Miradero bay. 3—Smith island. 9—Ratonas island. 15—Point Portaleza. 21—Miradero. 4—Nispero bay. 10—Julian. 16—Point Blanca. 22—Paradas. 5—Carliza. 11—Point Yarey. 17—Cascos river. 23—Point Sal. 6—Point Gorda. 12—Point Le Cruz. 18—Calmanes river. 24—Cinco Reales.

The mouth of the harbor is about a quarter of a mile across. There is a deep water channel (5 to 6 fathoms) up to Point La Cruz, beyond which point, up to the city of Santiago de Cuba, which lies eight miles from the mouth of the harbor, soundings show a succession of shoals and five-fathom channels.

An American vessel, the Merrimac, described in the advice from Santiago de Cuba as an auxiliary cruiser, making a dash to force the entrance, succeeded in passing the first line of defenses, but was torpedoed about five hundred feet up the channel.

She went down "perpendicular" (a pic). An officer, an engineer and six seamen were taken prisoners. The number of victims is unknown.

Only the funnel and mastsheads of the sunken vessel can be seen. There is great excitement in the city. A part of the population assisted in the fighting on the heights. Everybody is astounded at the audacity of the American vessel.

The American squadron was cruising all the while in the offing. CAPE HAITIEN, Hayti, June 4.—The American fleet, according to advices received by cable from Santiago de Cuba, the cable being under Spanish control, opened fire again at 3 o'clock Friday morning on the fortifications and war ships.

The cannonading was well sustained until 4 o'clock a. m. One of the United States auxiliary cruisers "well armed" attempted to force the passage into the harbor.

The Spanish allowed the cruiser to cross the first line of torpedoes, but before she arrived at the second line they discharged at her a torpedo, which broke a great hole in her side and caused her to sink almost instantly, bow first.

The name of the vessel is not known, nor is the number of victims reported. One officer, one engineer and six sailors were made prisoners.

A dispatch from Santiago says that the vessel sunk is understood to be the Merrimac. Only the extremities of her funnel and two masts are visible above the water.

The Santiago advises to Cape Haytien, in referring to the sunken vessel as auxiliary cruiser, probably mistake her character. The Merrimac is a collier and always has been a collier.

(It will be noted that there is an important discrepancy as to the time at which the bombardment is said to have begun Friday morning between the dispatches from Cape Haytien and Port au Prince, the former saying 3 o'clock and the latter 8. It is possible that this arises from a confusion between the figures 3 and 8).

BALTIMORE, June 4.—The Merrimac was purchased by the government from the Lone Star Steamship Co. The transfer was made in this city early in April. She was formerly the Norwegian steamer Solveig, and was nearly destroyed by fire at Newport News in 1896. She was built at Newcastle, Eng., in 1894, was 330 feet long, 44 feet beam and had a net register of 2,193 tons. The Merrimac left Norfolk where she was fitted for government purposes about a month ago.

CAPE HAITIEN, Hayti, June 4.—A second dispatch from Santiago de Cuba states that it is believed that the Merrimac was sent into the neck of the harbor by Sampson for the purpose of closing the port and thus prevent the escape of the Spanish squadron. From information conveyed by the prisoners it is believed they volunteered for this dangerous work and that none perished. They were prepared for the explosion when it occurred.

NEW YORK, June 4.—A Washington dispatch to the New York Herald says:

No official information has been received at the navy department of the report that the collier Merrimac had been sunk in the entrance to Santiago harbor. The officials of the navy department however, are of the opinion that the cablegram from Porto Rico is correct, and that Adm. Sampson has taken effective means to prevent the Spanish fleet from giving him the slip and running out under cover of a dark and rainy night before the land forces can reach Santiago and co-operate with him in the contemplated land and sea operations. It is thought probable that he engaged the shore batteries with the guns of his fleet

A BOLD DEED.

Volunteer Crew Scuttles the Merrimac in the Mouth of Santiago Harbor.

The Heroes Attempted to Return But Under Heavy Fire Compelled to Row to the Spanish Flag Ship—They Will Be Exchanged.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—"The cork is driven in the bottle," was the comment of the naval officers at the navy department Saturday morning upon the news of the sinking of the collier Merrimac in the channel at the entrance of Santiago harbor.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, June 6.—Hobson and the hero crew of the Merrimac were saved in the following manner: Unable, after the sinking of their vessel, to make their way back through the storm of shot and shell, they rowed into the harbor to the Spanish flagship and were taken on board unharmed. The Spanish admiral under a flag of truce on Friday sent word to the American admiral that he offered to exchange the prisoners, adding, that in the meanwhile Hobson and his party would be treated with the greatest kindness.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Information comes from the white house that the secretary of the navy has received a dispatch from Adm. Sampson stating that the Merrimac was sunk in the channel off Santiago harbor for the purpose blocking the passage.

ON BOARD DISPATCH BOAT DAUNTLESS, OFF SANTIAGO DE CUBA, June 6.—Via Kingston, Jamaica.—Rr. Adm. Sampson, during Friday morning decided to close the narrow harbor entrance of Santiago de Cuba by sinking the collier Merrimac, loaded with coal, in the channel. He called for volunteers to go to almost certain death and 4,000 men offered themselves. Lieut. Hobson and six men were chosen, and Friday morning the Merrimac, under her own steam, entered the channel under a terrible Spanish fire. The vessel was riddled with projectiles, but she anchored and swung around. Lieut. Hobson then set off an internal torpedo with an electric attachment, there was an explosion, the Merrimac sank, the channel was closed, and, apparently, Adm. Cervera will be unable to escape.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The war department was open for business in a limited way for half the day Sunday, and Adj. Gen. Corbin was hard at work at his desk in telegraphic correspondence with army officers in all parts of the country and particularly regarding the Spanish military prisoners from whom selections will be made for exchange of the gallant little band that sunk the Merrimac. The commanding officer at Fort McPherson, Ga., has furnished the department a full list of the captives to facilitate the work of exchange. This is likely to occupy more time than was originally expected because of the difficulty of communicating with the Spanish admiral at Santiago.

The number of Spanish prisoners at Fort McPherson is one first lieutenant, seven second lieutenants, one sergeant and nine privates.

Information afforded by the official records of the navy department as to the full names and antecedents of the gallant sailors who made up Hobson's little crew in sinking the Merrimac differs in some essentials from the data furnished through the dispatch boats Sunday morning. The naval list is about as follows:

Daniel Montague, first-class machinist on the New York, born in Ireland and 29 years old; last enlistment in December, 1896; next of kin Kate Golden, sister, 84 Horatio street, New York.

George Charette, first-class gunner's mate on the New York, born in Lowell, Mass., 29 years of age; last enlistment May 20, 1898; has been in the service since 1884; his next of kin is Alexander Charette, father, Lowell, Mass.

Osborn (not Oscar) Deignan, coxswain on the Merrimac, born in Stuart, Ia., 21 years old; last enlistment April 23, 1898; next of kin Julia Deignan, mother, Stuart, Ia.

George F. (not John P.) Phillips, machinist on the Merrimac, born in Boston, 34 years old; last enlistment March 30, 1898; next of kin Andrew Phillips, Cambridgeport, Mass.

Francis (probably instead of John) Kelly, war tender on the Merrimac, born in Boston, 28 years old; enlisted at Norfolk, April 21, last; next of kin, Francis Kelly, Boston.

Randolph Clausen, coxswain on the New York; born in Boston and 28 years of age; last enlistment February 25, 1897; next of kin, Teresa Clausen, wife, 127 Cherry street, New York.

It is apparent to the department officials that the call for volunteers did not extend beyond the two ships, New York and Merrimac, as all the men named belonged to those two vessels.

Great admiration is expressed at the department at the cool pluck and discretion shown by the young cadet, George W. Powell, who took command of the New York's steam launch and lay under the batteries for many hours until he was satisfied from his own observation that the Merrimac had gone down before he returned to the flagship.

It is felt that his fate involved a display of quite as much courage as was shown by the Merrimac crew and he is likely to profit by it.

Hobson to Be Promoted. WASHINGTON, June 6.—It was stated Sunday night at the white house that the recommendation of the president as to the promotion of Junior Lieut. Hobson would not be sent to congress before Tuesday. By that time it is expected that the arrangements for the exchange of the prisoners will have been concluded.

The Alfred Arrives at Halifax. HALIFAX, N. S., June 6.—The American steam yacht Alfred, from the great lakes, bound to New York, having been secured by the United States government, arrived Sunday for coal.

A HERO DEAD.

Capt. Chas. V. Gridley, Commander of the Olympia at Manila, Died at Kobe, Japan, June 4.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Capt. Charles Vernon Gridley, commander of the cruiser Olympia, and one of the heroes of the brilliant victory at Manila, is dead. The announcement of his death was received by the navy department late Sunday afternoon in a cablegram from Paymaster Galt, of the navy, dated at Kobe, Japan, June 4, and directed to Secretary Long.

Capt. Gridley is the first American officer of great prominence whose death is a direct result of the existing war with Spain. As the commander of Adm. Dewey's splendid flag ship and one of the Admiral's chief advisors, Capt. Gridley achieved distinction at the battle of Manila bay and added to his previous laurels by winning high praise from his superiors in the service for distinguished gallantry and ability. He fought his ship from the conning tower, while Adm. Dewey directed the movements of his squadron from the bridge of the vessel. It was not known for several weeks after the engagement that Capt. Gridley had suffered from it; and even now the precise nature of his trouble is not disclosed.

Upon the arrival of the Zafre at Hong Kong on May 29 the navy department was notified that Capt. Gridley had been condemned by a board of medical survey and "invalided" home. Subsequent advices received by the department indicated that Capt. Gridley was suffering from the effects of a rupture supposed to have been received during the battle at Manila, but no details were given.

Capt. Gridley was born in Logansport, Ind., in 1845, was appointed to the naval academy from Hillsdale, Mich., in 1860 by Representative Henry Waldron, the Gridleys having removed from Indiana to Michigan when their son Charles was only three months old.

NEGRO LYNCHED.

He Criminally Assaulted a Little Girl and Was Taken by a Mob and Hanged to a Tree—Body Bullet-Riddled.

TEXARKANA, Ark., June 4.—Thursday morning little Jessie Scott, daughter of the late Circuit Clerk J. V. Scott, was outraged by a Negro named Hayden near Fairview. He was arrested and lodged in jail Thursday night. At high noon Friday a committee of seven of the best men in this city took Hayden to Mrs. Scott's residence and placed him in the barn where the crime was committed. The young girl was taken to the scene, and upon entering the barn said, "That's the man." He was handed over to the mob. A rope was placed around his neck and the crowd began moving. An opening was made and through the lines the Negro was dragged and everybody hit him as he went. The rope was fixed so it would not choke him and a run made for a tree. Finally the crowd halted at the Iron Mountain crossing and the rope was thrown over the limb of a tree which stood within a few feet of where Ed Coy was burned for a like offense a few years ago. He was then jerked into the air, the rope tied and as the body oscillated it was riddled with bullets.

The crowds increased every minute and an Iron Mountain train was held an hour as the crowd refused to get off the track. The body swung from the limb several hours and was viewed by thousands of people.

REMARKABLE CASE.

Wm. Taylor, of the Cruiser New York, Wounded in the Arm, Abdomen, Liver, Lung and Shoulder, Recovers.

NEW YORK, May 6.—One of the remarkable cases brought here by the big ambulance is Wm. Taylor, a Washington boy, and a first-class apprentice on the cruiser New York. Taylor's recovery is the most marvelous of any of those remarked upon by the naval surgeons. One day, soon after the bombardment of Matanzas, through which the men on the New York passed without the slightest injury, a revolver dropped from the belt of Boatswain Mullen and exploded. The bullet passed through Taylor's right arm at the elbow, entered the abdomen, passed up through the liver, grazed the lung and came out through the left shoulder. An operation for laparotomy was performed and Taylor recovered, although naturally he is still suffering from the effects of his multiple wound and the operation.

THE TERROR. Spanish Torpedo Boat Destroyer, Reported Sunk by American Ships—Believed to Be the Furor.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, June 6.—A dispatch from Port Antonio says: "A vessel that has arrived here from Santiago de Cuba reports that the Americans sunk on Friday night the Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Terror."

The assumption, based upon dispatches from Madrid, has been that the destroyer Terror, after leaving Port de France, went to Porto Rico waters, and it is probable that the Port Antonio dispatch confuses her with her sister destroyer, the Furor, as has several times been the case in dispatches from other points.

The Revolution in Venezuela. PANAMA, Colombia, (via Galveston, Tex.), June 6.—News from various sources received via Cartagena indicates that the revolution in progress in Venezuela, headed by the conservative leader, Mocho Hernandez despite official reports, seems to be formidable and daily gaining headway.

Burned by Mush. DUNKIRK, Ind., June 6.—Mrs. Wm. Camp, of this city, while cooking mush, fell in comatose condition, pulling the hot mush on her, burning her face and neck frightfully. The chances for recovery are unfavorable.

HIGHEST PRAISE.

London Papers Comment on the Daring Deed of Lieut. Hobson and Men.

Naval Game in West Indies Seems Played Out—Santiago Invites Capture by Military Action—Cervera's Fleet Will Be Scuttled or Captured.

LONDON, June 6.—All the papers refer in terms of the highest praise to Naval Constructor Hobson's daring exploit at Santiago de Cuba, but some doubts are thrown upon the statement that the Merrimac so completely blocks the channel as the American reports assert.

The Times in an article reviewing the operations of the week says:

"It is most probable that Adm. Cervera has a deliberate intention to stay at Santiago, therefore, to open the channel would be of very little use to him. It seems clear that the squadron was not prepared for war or fit for sea when it left the Cape Verde islands, and there is good reason to doubt whether the Cristobal Colon even shipped her big guns at all."

"Hobson's exploit is one of which the American navy may well be proud. The idea that the wreck can be removed by the use of a little dynamite is opposed to all experience. Madrid describes the affair as a brilliant Spanish victory, but from dreams of such victories there is an unpleasant awakening."

"Adm. Cervera's period of evasion is now ended and, beyond creating an unreasoning panic in America, he has accomplished nothing. The naval game in the West Indies seems played out, and little can be said of it except that events have conformed strictly to law and that no new and expected developments can be traced. Santiago now invites capture by military action, and Adm. Cervera's ships, unless scuttled, can not avoid capture."

The Times, commenting editorially on the exploit, says:

"The perilous operation was executed with splendid gallantry by a little band of volunteers who almost miraculously escaped. The destruction and fall of Santiago are now only a question of time, with the disappearance of all the hopes founded upon the Spanish fleet."

"Spain's sympathizers recognize that her case is hopeless, and America will not distress herself much about such warnings as that of the St. Petersburg Novosti Saturday, until the combination assumes a more tangible form than there is any prospect of at present."

"Peace is at Spain's disposal whenever she seeks it frankly and sincerely, but her game is clearly lost and it is quite out of the question to define as 'honorable peace' one restoring the status quo."

The Daily Chronicle remarks: Added to the other dangers was the danger of sharks. The incident gives fresh luster to the renown of the American navy."

The Daily News says: "All English sailors will join with the Americans in admiration of this exploit under the point blank fire of the Spanish batteries. Whether the Merrimac was intended to be sunk or to clear a fair way through the mines can not affect the praise due men who heroically volunteered to face almost certain death in the service of their country. If the United States can count on self-sacrifice of that kind in great emergencies, the Santiago forts will be powerless to prevent Adm. Sampson reaching the Spanish squadron, should that measure seem good to him."

The article proceeds to argue that it is premature however to suppose that the channel is absolutely closed or that it would be impossible to destroy the hulk. It says:

"English torpedo officers could devise many methods of floating out dynamite charges, unless the hulk lies far outside Morro Castle, in which case it can not be blocking the channel completely. If the Merrimac's masts and funnels are still visible, she sunk somewhere near the five fathom mark and has left the deep channel clear."

LEAVE MOBILE. Five Transports Carrying United States Troops Sailed Under Sealed Orders Amid Scenes of Enthusiasm.

MOBILE, Ala., June 6.—Five transports carrying the 20th infantry, Col. Wheaton; 3rd infantry, Col. Page, and troops A, C, D and F of the 2nd cavalry, steamed down the Mobile river at 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning, en route presumably to Tampa, but really under sealed orders.

The transports are the steamers Matewan, Stillwater, Breakwater, Arkansas and Morgan.

Scenes of enthusiasm all along the river front where thousands of people had congregated were witnessed. Whistles of all the river and bay craft and mills and ringing of bells kept up an increasing din as long as the transports were in sight.

Fast Time to Colorado.

A new through Sleeping Car line between St. Louis and Colorado Springs will be established over the Washburn-Rock Island Short Line, May 15th, 1898. The time will be the fastest made with through service between these two points by many hours. A through Sleeper will leave St. Louis on Washburn train No. 3, at 9:20 a. m., arriving at Colorado Springs the next morning at 11:00, with a direct connection for Denver, arriving at 11:30 a. m. This is the fastest regular through service ever established between St. Louis and Colorado. Returning, the Sleeper will leave Colorado Springs at 2:45 p. m., and arrive at St. Louis the next evening at 6:15.

Patrons of this line will avoid the only unpleasant feature heretofore attendant on Colorado travel, inasmuch as the trip through Missouri's fertile fields will now be by daylight, and the unattractive portion of Kansas will be traversed during the night, with the mountain scenery to greet the tourists in the morning.

The fast time of this line will naturally commend the Washburn Route to intending Colorado tourists.

Particulars will be gladly furnished on application.

Three Women Relieved of Female Troubles by Mrs. Pinkham.

From Mrs. A. W. SMITH, 59 Summer St., Biddeford, Me.:

"For several years I suffered with various diseases peculiar to my sex. Was troubled with a burning sensation across the small of my back, that all-gone feeling, was despondent, fretful and discouraged; the least exertion tired me. I tried several doctors but received little benefit. At last I decided to give your Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. The effect of the first bottle was magical. Those symptoms of weakness that I was afflicted with, vanished like vapor before the sun. I cannot speak too highly of your valuable remedy. It is truly a boon to woman."

From Mrs. MELISSA PHILLIPS, Lexington, Ind., to Mrs. Pinkham:

"Before I began taking your medicine I had suffered for two years with that tired feeling, headache, backache, no appetite, and a run-down condition of the system. I could not walk across the room. I have taken four bottles of the Vegetable Compound, one box of Liver Pills and used one package of Sanative Wash, and now feel like a new woman, and am able to do my work."

From Mrs. MOLLIE E. HEIGEL, Powell Station, Tenn.:

PART IV.

CHAPTER XVII.

DOCTOR—THE JOLLY-BOAT'S LAST TRIP.

This fifth trip was quite different from any of the others. In the first place, the little galliot of a boat that we were in was gravely overloaded. Five grown men, and three of them—Trelawney, Redruth and the captain—over six feet high, was already more than she was meant to carry. Add to that the powder, pork and the bread-bags. The gunwale was lipping astern. Several times we shipped a little water, and my breeches and the tails of my coat were all soaking wet before we had gone 100 yards.

The captain made us trim the boat, and we got her to lie a little more evenly. All the same, we were afraid to breathe.

In the second place, the ebb was now making—a strong rippling current running westward through the basin, and then southward and seaward down the straits by which we had entered in the morning. Even the ripples were a danger to our overloaded craft; but the worst of it was that we were swept out of our true course, and away from our proper landing-place behind the point. If we let the current have its way we should come ashore beside the gigs, where the pirates might appear at any moment.

"I cannot keep her head for the stockade, sir," said I to the captain. I was steering, while he and Redruth, two fresh men, were at the oars. "The tide keeps washing her down. Could you pull a little stronger?"

"Not without swamping the boat," said he. "You must bear up, sir, if you please—bear up until you see you're gaining."

I tried, and found by experiment that the tide kept sweeping us westward until I had laid her head due east, or just about right angles to the way we ought to go.

"We'll never get ashore at this rate," said I.

"If it's the only course that we can lie, sir, we must even lie it," returned the captain. "We must keep upstream. You see, sir," he went on, "if once we dropped to leeward of the landing-place, it's hard to say where we should get ashore, besides the chance of being boarded by the gigs; whereas, the way we go the current must slacken, and then we can dodge back along the shore."

"The current's less a ready, sir," said the man Gray, who was sitting in the fore-sheets; "you can ease her off a bit."

"Thank you, my man," said I, quite as if nothing had happened; for we had all quietly made up our minds to treat him like one of ourselves.

Suddenly the captain spoke up again, and I thought his voice was a little changed.

"The gun!" said he.

"I have thought of that," said I, for I made sure he was thinking of a bombardment of the fort. "They could never get the gun ashore, and if they did, they could never haul it through the woods."

"Look astern, doctor," replied the captain.

We had entirely forgotten the long nine; and there, to our horror, were the five rogues busy about her, getting off her jacket, as they called the stout tarpaulin cover under which she sailed. Not only that, but it flashed into my mind at the same moment that the round shot and the powder for the gun had been left behind, and a stroke with an ax would put it all into the possession of the evil ones aboard.

"Israel was Flint's gunner," said Gray, hoarsely.

At any risk, we put the boat's head direct for the landing-place. By this time we had got so far out of the run of the current that we kept steering way even at our necessarily gentle rate of rowing, and I could keep her steady for the goal. But the worst of it was that, with the course I now held, we turned our broadside instead of our stern to the "Hispaniola," and offered a target like a barn door.

I could hear, as well as see, that brandy-faced rascal, Israel Hands, plumping down a round-shot on the deck.

"Who's the best shot?" asked the captain.

"Mr. Trelawney, out and away," said I.

"Mr. Trelawney, will you please pick me off one of those men, sir? Hands, if possible," said the captain.

Trelawney was as cold as steel. He looked to the priming of his gun.

"Now," cried the captain, "easy with that gun, sir, or you'll swamp the boat. All hands stand by to trim her when he aims."

The squire raised his gun, the rowing ceased, and we leaned over to the other side to keep the balance, and all was so nicely contrived that we did not ship a drop.

They had the gun, by this time, slewed round upon the swivel and Hands, who was at the muzzle with the rammer, was, in consequence, the most exposed. However, we had no luck; for just as Trelawney fired, down he stooped, the ball whistling over him, and it was one of the other four who fell.

The cry he gave was echoed, not only by his companions on board, but by a great number of voices from the shore, and looking in that direction I saw the other pirates trooping out from among the trees and tumbling into their places in the boats.

"Here come the gigs, sir," said I. "Give way, then," said the captain. "We mustn't mind if we swamp her now. If we can't get ashore, all's up."

"Only one of the gigs is being manned, sir," I added, "the crew of the other most likely going round by shore to cut us off."

"They'll have a hot run, sir," returned the captain; "Jack ashore, you know. It's not them I mind; it's the round-shot. Carpet bowls! My lady's maid couldn't miss. Tell us, squire, when you see the match, and we'll hold water."

In the meanwhile we had been making headway at a good pace for a boat so overloaded, and we had shipped but little water in the process. We were now close in; 30 or 40 strokes and we should beach her; for the ebb had already disclosed a narrow belt of sand below the clustering trees. The gig was no longer to be feared; the little point had already concealed it from our eyes. The ebb-tide, which had so cruelly delayed us, was now making reparation, and delaying our assailants. The one source of danger was the gun.

"If I durst," said the captain, "I'd stop and pick off another man."

But it was plain that they meant nothing should delay their shot. They had never so much as looked at their fallen comrade, though he was not dead, and I could see him trying to crawl away.

As Trelawney fired the ball whistled over our heads.

"Ready!" cried the squire.

"Hold!" cried the captain, quick as an echo.

And he and Redruth backed with a great heave that sent her stern bodily under water. The report fell in at the same instant of time. This was the first that Jim heard, the sound of the squire's shot not having reached him. When the ball passed, not one of us precisely knew; but I fancy it must have been over our heads, and that the wind of it may have contributed to our disaster.

At any rate, the boat sunk by the stern, quite gently, in three feet of water, leaving the captain and myself, facing each other, on our feet. The other three took complete headers, and came up again, drenched and bubbling.

So far there was no great harm. No lives were lost, and we could wade ashore in safety. But there were all our stores in the bottom, and to make things worse, only two guns out of five remained in a state for service. Mine I had snatched from my knees and held over my head, by a sort of instinct. As for the captain, he had carried his over his shoulder by a bandolier, and, like a wise man, lock uppermost.

The three had gone down with the boat. To add to our concern we heard voices already drawing near us in the woods along shore; and we had not only the danger of being cut off from the stockade in our half-crippled state, but the fear before us, whether if Hunter and Joyce were attacked by half a dozen they would have the sense and conduct to stand firm. Hunter was steady, that we knew; Joyce was a doubtful case—a pleasant, polite man for a valet, and to brush one's clothes, but not entirely fitted for a man-of-war.

With all this in our minds, we waded ashore as fast as we could, leaving behind the poor jolly-boat, and a good half of our powder and provisions.

CHAPTER XVIII.

DOCTOR—END OF THE FIRST DAY'S FIGHTING.

We made our best speed across the strip of wood that now divided us from the stockade, and at every step we took the voices of the buccanniers rang nearer. Soon we could hear their footsteps as they ran, and the cracking of the branches as they breasted across a bit of thicket.

I began to see we should have a brush for it in earnest, and looked to my priming.

"Captain," said I, "Trelawney is the dead shot. Give him your gun; his own is useless."

They exchanged guns, and Trelawney, silent and cool as he had been since the beginning of the bustle, hung a moment on his heel to see that all was fit for service. At the same time, observing Gray to be unarmed, I handed him my cutlass. It did all our hearts good to see him spit on his hand, knit his brows, and make the blade sing through the air. It was plain from every line of his body that our new hand was worth his salt.

Forty paces further we came to the edge of the wood and saw the stockade in front of us. We struck the inclosure about the middle of the south side, and, almost at the same time seven mutineers—Job Anderson, the boatswain, at their head, appeared in full cry at the southwestern corner.

They paused, as if taken aback, and before they could recover not only the squire and I, but Hunter and Joyce from the block-house had time to fire. The four shots came in rather a scattering volley; but they did the business; one of the enemy actually fell, and the rest, without hesitation, turned and plunged into the trees.

After reloading, we walked down the outside of the palisade to see the fallen enemy. He was stone dead—shot through the heart.

We began to rejoice over our good success, when just at that moment a pistol cracked in the bush, a ball whistled close past my ear, and poor Tom Redruth stumbled and fell his full length on the ground. Both the squire and I returned the shot; but as we had nothing to aim at, it is probable we only wasted powder. Then we reloaded, and turned our attention to poor Tom.

The captain and Gray were already examining him, and I saw with half an eye that all was over.

I believe the readiness of our return volley had scattered the mutineers once more, for we were suffered without further molestation to get the poor old gamekeeper hoisted over the stockade and carried, groaning and bleeding, into the log house.

Poor old fellow, he had not uttered one word of surprise, complaint, fear, or even acquiescence, from the very beginning of our troubles till now, when we had laid him down in the log house to die. He had laid like a Trojan behind his mattress in the gallery; he had followed every order silently, doggedly and well; he was the oldest of our party by a score of years; and now, sullen, old, servicable servant, it was he that was to die.

The squire dropped down beside him on his knees and kissed his hand, crying like a child.

"Be I going, doctor?" he asked.

"Tom, my man," said I, "you're going home."

"I wish I had a lick at them with the gun first," he replied.

"Tom," said the squire, "say you forgive me, won't you?"

"Would that be respectful like, from me to you, squire?" was the answer. "Howsoever, so be it, amen!"

After a little while of silence, he said he thought somebody might read a prayer. "It's the custom, sir," he added, apologetically. And not long after, without another word, he passed away.

In the meantime the captain, whom I had observed to be wonderfully swollen about the chest and pockets, had turned out a great many various stores—the British colors, a Bible, a coil of stout rope, pen, ink, the log book, and pounds of tobacco. He had found a longish fir tree lying felled and cleared in the inclosure, and, with the help of Hunter, he had set it up at the corner of the log house where the trunks crossed and made an angle. Then, climbing on the roof, he had with his own hand bent and run up the colors.

This seemed mightily to relieve him. He reentered the log house and set about counting the stores, as if nothing else existed. But he had an eye on Tom's passage for all that; and as soon as all was over came forward with another flag and reverently spread it on the body.

"Don't you take on, sir," he said, shaking the squire's hand. "All's well with him; no fear for a hand that's been shot down in his duty to captain and owner. It mayn't be good divinity, but it's a fact."

Then he pulled me aside.

"Dr. Livesey," he said, "in how many weeks do you and squire expect the consort?"

I told him it was a question, not of weeks, but of months; that if we were not back by the end of August, Blandly was to send to find us; but neither sooner nor later. "You can calculate for yourself," I said.

"Why, yes," returned the captain, scratching his head, "and making a large allowance, sir, for all the gifts of Providence, I should say we were pretty close hauled."

"How do you mean?" I asked.

"It's a pity, sir, we lost the second load. That's what I mean," replied the captain. "As for powder and shot, we'll do. But the rations are short, very short—so short, Dr. Livesey, that we're perhaps as well without that extra mouth."

And he pointed to the dead body under the flag.

Just then, with a roar and a whistle, a round shot passed high above the roof of the log house and plumped far beyond us in the wood.

"Oh!" said the captain. "Blaze away! You've little enough powder already, my lads."

At the second trial the aim was better and the ball descended inside the stockade, scattering a cloud of sand, but doing no further damage.

"Captain," said the squire, "the house is quite invisible from the ship. It must be the flag they are aiming at. Would it not be wiser to take it in?"

"Strike my colors!" cried the captain. "No, sir, not I; and, as soon as he had said the words, I think we all agreed with him. For it was not only a piece of stout, seamanly good feeling; it was good policy besides, and showed our enemies that we despised their cannonade.

All through the evening they kept thundering away. Ball after ball flew over or fell short, or kicked up the sand in the inclosure; but they had to fire so high that the shot fell dead and buried itself in the soft sand. We had no ricochet to fear; and though one popped in through the roof of the log house and out again through the floor, we soon got used to that sort of horse-play and minded it no more than cricket.

"There is one thing about all this," observed the good captain; "the wood in front of us is likely clear. The ebb has made a good wharf; our stores should be uncovered. Volunteers to go and bring in pork."

Gray and Hunter were the first to come forward. Well armed, they stole out of the stockade, but it proved a useless mission. The mutineers were bolder than we fancied, or they put more trust in Israel's gunnery. For four or five of them were busy carrying off our stores, and wading out with them to one of the gigs that lay close by, pulling an oar or so to hold her steady against the current. Silver was in the stern-sheets in command; and every man of them was now provided with a musket from some secret magazine of their own.

The captain sat down to his log, and there is the beginning of the entry:

"Alexander Smollett, master; David Livesey, ship's doctor; Abraham Gray, carpenter's mate; John Trelawney, owner; John Hunter and Richard Joyce, owner's servants, landsmen—being all that is left faithful of the ship's company—with stores for ten days at short rations, came ashore this day, and flew British colors on the log house in Treasure Island. Thomas Redruth, owner's servant, landsman, shot by the mutineers; James Hawkins, cabin-boy—"

And at the same time I was wondering over poor Jim Hawkins' fate.

A hail on the land side.

"Somebody hailing us," said Hunter, who was on guard.

"Doctor! squire! captain! Hallo, Hunter, is that you?" came the cries.

And I ran to the door in time to see Jim Hawkins, safe and sound, come climbing over the stockade.

SHE SAVED HER BICYCLE.

A Louisville Physician Tells Why His Bill Was Cut Down.

"Had it been a man," said one of Louisville's best-known physicians, "I should have known what to do. But a woman is a conundrum in herself and in a majority of her actions."

"I had been attending in the family for weeks. I patched the husband up after his almost fatal misunderstanding with the trolley car. I saw the young wife through a serious illness. After months had expired I sent a most reasonable bill with a modest hint that I was in need of some money. It seems that I could not have selected a more inopportune time for this gentle dun. The husband was lamenting the aggregate of family bills and the paucity of the family purse. There was a continuous and unending call upon his slender resources that had become maddening. He would pay the doctor, who had been faithful and considerate, but there he would draw the line for some time to come. They must retrench, and as custodian of the purse strings he would see that they did retrench."

"When the wife came to settle she was visibly depressed. If I would only cut the bill in two she would pay it at once. One of the most potent pleas in her behalf was two tears just ready to start and a just perceptible quivering of her pretty lips. The other was a pressing need of ready money on my part. I'm not a Napoleon of finance, by any means. So I wrote a receipt in full and accepted 50 cents on the dollar."

"Then the little woman fairly danced in her glee. She waved a handful of bills triumphantly over her head and said, exultantly: 'Now I can pay the installment on my bicycle. I was almost wild for fear I was going to lose it. I gave her as good an imitation of laughing as circumstances would permit, but it was a mighty good thing that she was not a man.'—Louisville Post.

The Incredible Truth.

The only instance I have ever heard of smuggling by anyone on a big scale was the case of a traveler who had brought from Cuba a large quantity of cigars for his own smoking. He was honest up to a certain point; for, on being asked by the customs officer if he had anything to declare, he pointed to his portmanteau, saying: "That is full of cigars." "Oh, I dare say," said the official, laughing, and, writing his cabalistic hieroglyphics in chalk, let him go free. I regret to say that the traveler's honesty was not proof against such a temptation to evade the proper duties.—Nineteenth Century.

Her Perplexity.

There is a little girl living out on Tilden avenue who is rapidly causing her father's hair to assume the color of the driven snow.

The other day she looked up at him from between his knees, and asked: "Papa, was it a wise person who said 'the good die young'?"

"Yes," said the musing man, "I guess so."

"Well," she went on, after thinking it over for some time, "I'm not so much surprised about you; but I don't see how mamma ever managed to get growed up."—Cleveland Leader.

THE LONG CRUISE.

The United States Battle Ship Oregon Joins the Combined Squadrons.

Exchange of Visits Began, and the Officers and Men of the Oregon, the Navy's Crack Heavyweight, Were Heartily Complimented and Welcomed.

ON BOARD THE ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH BOAT DAUNTLESS, May 29, via KEY WEST, Fla., June 3.—The United States battleship Oregon joined the fleet Thursday morning, finishing the most remarkable long distance cruise in the history of modern ironclads. Her reception by the fleet was worthy of her achievement. Coming along at a 15-knot speed, she swept in a majestic semi-circle through the fleet to a point opposite the flagship, solid ranks of white-clad, cheering sailors manning the sides of each vessel as she passed. The first news of the Oregon's arrival at Key West was brought to the squadron by a dispatch boat soon after sunrise. The fleet was consequently on the lookout for her and when almost at noon there loomed up a gray hulk on the northwest horizon there was vigorous wig-wagging from ship to ship. Marine glasses showed the ponderous outlines of the navy's crack heavyweight, and showed also that she carried "a bone in her teeth," as she piled up the white water on each side of her bow.

"Fifteen knots, if it's a mile," was the verdict as she raced in on the homestretch of her long journey, and watches held on her as she approached confirmed it. She had a decided list to port from hastily filled bunkers that

AT SANTIAGO.

Adm. Sampson Arrives and Assumes Command of the Entire Naval Force Off That Harbor.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—It was stated Thursday morning that Rr. Adm. Sampson arrived off Santiago Wednesday afternoon, where he assumed command of the entire naval force off that place and assigned Commodore Schley to the command of the division comprising the ships formerly attached to the flying squadron.

Fifteen warships are at Adm. Sampson's disposal to pit against the six men-of-war flying the Spanish flag.

It is said that while Sampson has the largest discretion as to operations against the Spanish ships and fortifications, it is believed he will wait for troops to reach the place before doing anything but blockading Santiago and preventing Cervera's ships from escaping. Shafter and from 15,000 to 20,000 men will, it is expected, reach Santiago early next week.

AT TAMPA.

No Troops Have Left There, and it is Not Believed Any Large Movement Will Take Place in the Near Future.

TAMPA, Fla., June 3.—There is but little change in the general situation here. It can be stated positively that no troops have been embarked at this point, and until definite official news is received from the fleets of Sampson and Schley it is the generally expressed opinion among the army officers that no movement of troops from here in the direction of Cuba will be ordered. The powerful fleet of Adm. Cervera is still much of a factor. It is there had been no time to trim since dashing into Key West and out again. But her short stay there spoke volumes for the mechanism of a Pacific-built ship which could make a 13,000 mile run, throw in fresh coal and steam out to what might be a battle ground without stopping to even tighten a crankpin.

CAUGHT IN HIS OWN TRAP.

"I LEFT THIS COAL HOLE OPEN FOR THE SPANIARD, AND I GUESS HE FELL INTO IT."

The dispatch boats lying outside the squadron raised their flags as the Oregon bore down between them, while her officers and men waved their hands and caps were silently lifted.

The big fighter slowed down to a majestic pace and then the noise arose. Rank upon rank of white clad sailors broke into yells, which came over a half a mile against the wind, and the crews of the Oregon sent them back with interest. Then the ships, each white with men, renewed their greeting, and each vessel of the fleet joined in again, and as the Oregon glided between the flag ship and the Indiana, the latter's band swung into the "Washington Post" march. Then the exchange of visits began and the officers and men of the Oregon were heartily complimented and welcomed by all.

Planters' Fatal Duel.

AT JACKSONVILLE.

Arrangements Made for a Concentration of a Large Number of Troops There Under Gen. Lee.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—There are evidences that the war department is making arrangements for the concentration of a large number of troops at Jacksonville, where Maj. Gen. Lee, commanding the 7th army corps has his headquarters. Two regiments which had been assigned originally to Chickamauga will go instead to the Florida city. These are one of the Virginia regiments and one of the New Jersey regiments. Jacksonville has been spoken of as likely to be a base of operations for the expedition to Porto Rico, and the expectation is that other regiments will be ordered there as soon as they are ready for active service.

Wonderful Vitality.

TOLEDO, O., June 3.—Philip Hertzog, aged 65, despondent over his wife's death, made an unsuccessful attempt to end his earthly existence Wednesday night. The aged man cut his throat with a razor, and, death not following rapidly enough to suit him, fired a bullet in his breast in the region of his heart. The second effort did not cause death, so he went to Forest cemetery and knelt down on his wife's grave, firing four shots into his brain. When taken to the hospital he was still conscious. Three bullets are in his brain. Hertzog is a man of powerful physique and may recover.

From Camp Thomas.

Camp Thomas,
Chickamauga, Ga.,
June 5th

Col. Gaither has detailed Maj. Helburn, Privates Charlton Alexander, Brainard and Nayless to go to Kentucky for recruits for the Second Regiment.

The daily routine is now as follows: Reveille 5:30 a. m.; roll call 5:45; breakfast at 6:00; Company drill 8 to 9:30; rest till 3:00 p. m. and dinner at noon; Company drill 3:30 to 5:00; roll call and supper 5:30; retreat 6 to 7; tattoo 9, call to quarters 9:15; taps 9:30.

John Stone, of Georgetown, who enlisted in Company I, of Paris, has been transferred to the Georgetown Company.

Capt. Harry Strother, of the Winchester Company, has been poisoned, but not by a Spanish spy. His face is badly swollen from being touched by a poison oak vine.

Many members of Company I are sporting such a quantity of Chickamauga-grown whiskers that their loved ones in Kentucky would scarcely recognize them. The boys have enjoyed bathing in Chickamauga creek, and 10,000 of the soldiers of various regiments took a swim in one afternoon last week. Private Roy McDonald, of the Second Missouri Infantry, was drowned Friday.

Robert F. James, a son of Frank James, the noted ex-outlaw, is a member of one of the Second U. S. cavalry here. He is just of age, and since graduating from college has been employed in the auditor's office of a railway running out of St. Louis.

Col. Gaither has most emphatically refused to allow a "canteen" to be operated in the Second Regiment. The proposition was made by the representative of an Ohio brewery.

Though no definite statement can be secured from Col. Gaither regarding the movement of the Second it is understood that the regiment will remain for several weeks at Chickamauga, and then be removed to Porto Rico.

Among the recent appointments of members of Company I may be mentioned: Charlton Alexander as clerk to Col. Gaither, Ed Hill as clerk to Inspector General Breckinridge, Talbot Arnold as Third Sergeant, and Hugh Brent as First Corporal.

The Second Regiment has received its quota of clothing but the boys are still without guns. They are showing up finely in drill work and Col. Gaither is very proud of them.

Col. Gaither was kept busy for some time this morning signing passes for the boys to visit Chattanooga and Lookout Mountain, and all enjoyed the day. They were all back in camp at six o'clock.

The boys of the Second were made happy yesterday morning by the receipt of numerous boxes of good things to eat sent from Paris by relatives and kind friends. It is needless to say that the boxes were appreciated, and that the boys are grateful to every one of the contributors.

Call and see the new line of boys' waists—25, 50 and 75 cents—at Price & Co's., clothiers. No trouble to show goods.

OBITUARY.

Respectfully Dedicated To The Memory Of The Dead.

James Givens, half brother of Col. J. G. Craddock, of this city, died at Lexington Sunday afternoon, aged eighty-one years. The deceased was formerly a merchant and a bank attache, of this city, and is remembered by the older residents as an estimable citizen and a pleasant gentleman. His only child, a lovely young lady and a dutiful daughter, was killed by being thrown from a horse. The funeral of Mr. Givens was held at the Paris cemetery yesterday afternoon, short services being held at the grave by Eld. J. S. Sweeney, Rev. Dr. Rutherford and Rev. F. J. Cheek. Many friends of Col. Craddock and of the deceased were present.

The board's work this year results in an excess in additions over reductions of $30,943,931, making the total equalized assessment for this year $552,877,967. ## State L. A. W. Meet.

THE annual meet of the Kentucky Division of the L. A. W. will be held in Lexington on June 20 and 21. Paris will be represented by a large delegation of cyclists, and it is expected that the local wheelmen will bring home some of the prizes. The railroads will sell tickets at half rate and check bicycles free. The races will be run at the Fair Grounds, and Saxton's band will furnish music both days. The Fayette Wheel Club has arranged a fine program for the entertainment of the visiting wheelmen.

Another Warning.

IN a previous issue THE NEWS warned its readers against paying money in advance for pictures to solicitors. Many reputable citizens have been victimized in this community by unscrupulous persons who represent themselves as agents for reliable houses, but the sequel has proved a costly lesson to the credulous citizens who were induced to advance money to the wily solicitor. Various instances of the utter unreliability of these picture-agents have been reported to THE NEWS: A coat is held for a livery bill at one place, and a sample case for a board bill at another, and so on, and names are alleged to have been signed to testimonials without authority, etc. The colored people have also been preyed upon by these picture-vultures. THE NEWS is informed that similar fakirs are now operating in neighboring towns. Look out for them.

REMEMBERED THE MAINE.

Dewey! Dewey! Dewey!
Is the hero of the day,
And the Maine has been remembered
In the good, old-fashioned way—
The way of Hull and Perry,
Decatur, and the rest,
When old Europe felt the clutches
Of the eagle of the west;
That's how Dewey smashed the Spaniard
In Manila's crooked bay,
And the Maine has been remembered
In the good, old-fashioned way!

Dewey! Dewey! Dewey!
A Vermont wins the day!
And the Maine has been remembered
In the good, old-fashioned way—
By one who cared not whether
The wind was high or low
As he stripped his ships for battle
And sailed forth to find the foe,
And he found the haughty Spaniard
In Manila's crooked bay,
And the Maine has been remembered
In the good, old-fashioned way!

Dewey! Dewey! Dewey!
He has met the Don's array,
And the Maine has been remembered
In the good, old-fashioned way—
A way of fire and carnage,
But carnage let it be,
When the forces of the tyrant
Blocked the pathway of the free!
So the Spanish ships are missing
From Manila's crooked bay,
And the Maine has been remembered
In the good, old-fashioned way!

Dewey! Dewey! Dewey!
Crown with victor wreaths of May;
For the Maine has been remembered
In the good, old-fashioned way—
And flags that wave triumphant
In the far-off tropic seas,
With their code of symbolized color,
Fling this message to the breeze:
"We have routed all the Spaniards
From Manila's crooked bay,
And the Maine has been remembered
In the good, old-fashioned way!"
—Edward F. Burns, in Boston Globe.

NURSE vs. PATIENT

Characters: Dr. Yeames Weldon, M. D., London, family physician; Mrs. Mortimer, a slender maiden; Master Edward Mortimer, a robust urchin.
Time: Ten a. m.
Scene: A boy's bedroom; single iron bedstead, chest of drawers and toilet table combined. Shelves crammed with a medley of books, boats and mechanical toys, all more or less battered and disreputable in appearance. Walls decorated with sundry warlike weapons, and one framed certificate stating that by gaining 233 marks Master Albert Edward Mortimer had attained to seventh highest place in his class. Plump boy sick a-bed.

DR. YEAMES WELDON (examining patient)—"H'm! Rose-rash, slight sore throat, temperature a trifle high. Well, I think there is not a shadow of doubt that Master Albert here is in for German measles.

Mrs. Mortimer (imploringly)—"Don't conceal anything from me, I beseech you, Dr. Weldon. Don't hesitate to tell me the worst. I am very brave. Is it a very serious disease?"

Dr. Yeames Weldon (reassuringly)—"No, no, my dear madam. It is one of the mildest possible ailments, only rather troublesome, for you'll have that lively fellow under quarantine for some time.

Master Albert Edward (anxiously)—"How long shall it be before I must go back to school, sir?"

Dr. Yeames Weldon—Well, about six weeks. Will that length of holiday suit you, young man? (Albert Edward grins beatifically, but makes no vocal reply.) Now, Mrs. Mortimer, I would certainly advise you to engage a nurse for a week or two; not that the malady is at all serious, but to save yourself fatigue.

Mrs. Mortimer (indignantly)—"O, no! I should never dream of letting anyone attend Albert but myself. He is my only child, and this is his first illness. What would he think of me in after years if I left him to the care of a stranger when he most needed me?"

Dr. Yeames Weldon—Well, arrange as you judge best, of course. German measles is rather infectious, and if the servants are much in attendance they run the risk of catching the disorder.

Mrs. Mortimer (enthusiastically)—"O! I shall devote my time entirely to Albert, and will allow no one to enter the room but myself. Only tell me what to do.

Dr. Yeames Weldon—The treatment is quite simple. Keep the room comfortably warm (about 60 degrees), and sponge him all over with equal parts of vinegar and water several times a day. I shall send in a mixture to be taken every three hours, and a gargle to be used occasionally. (Master Albert Edward looks downcast.)

Mrs. Mortimer—And how about diet? Dr. Yeames Weldon—O! he may have plenty of milk, fruit, anything he fancies. All the good things, indeed. (Master Albert Edward brightens considerably.) I shall look in to-morrow morning, and if you should feel in doubt about anything before then, just let me know. But for your own sake I would advise you to get a nurse. I know of a pleasant, sensible person, who is disengaged at present, and could come at once.

Mrs. Mortimer (firmly and virtuously)—"Thank you very much, Dr. Weldon, but I shall not require her. I consider it every mother's duty and privilege to tend her own little ones in sickness, and to let them enjoy the tranquillizing effect of a mother's love.

Dr. Yeames Weldon (inwardly chuckling, outwardly grave)—Yes. I quite understand your point of view. Still, should you change your opinion at any time, just let me know. Good-morning.

10:15 a. m.—Patient enjoys light refreshment of oranges and grapes, and demands various toys—which have to be unearthed from divers corners of the house—to play with.

10:30 a. m.—Medicine arrives. Patient declines to consider it. Mother urges him to reconsider his decision.

10:40 a. m.—Patient still decided. Mother firm.

10:50 a. m.—Struggle continued. Patient resolved. Mother wavering.

11 a. m.—Bribery and corruption resorted to. Does swallowed reluctantly.

11:10 a. m.—Patient's strength sustained by small snack consisting of Savoy biscuits and lemonade.

11:30 a. m.—Gargle impending.

11:45 a. m.—Gargle still impending.

11:50 a. m.—Gargle administered, but with difficulty, and ineffectually.

12 noon.—Inauguration of vinegar and water sponging, which proceeds but slowly against the determined opposition of patient.

12:30 p. m.—Invalid demands refec-tion of certain dessert sweets as compensation for having undergone sponging. Mother demurs.

12:40 p. m.—Argument ensues.

12:50 p. m.—Mother succumbs. Invalid becomes triumphantly sticky and happy.

1 p. m.—Patient, rejecting previously ordered wholesome arrowroot, insists upon having indigestible chipped potatoes and meringues for lunch.

1 to 1:45 p. m.—Usual controversy, which ends in invalid's favor.

2 p. m.—Patient lunches triumphantly off chipped potatoes and meringues. Mother too exhausted to eat anything.

2:30 p. m.—Medicine taken peaceably, patient being paid his own price—one box of soldiers at 1s. 6d., and two half-penny comic papers.

2:45 p. m.—Gargle in prospect.

3:05 p. m.—Patient agrees to administration of gargle on mother pledging herself to take immediate steps towards the purchase of Tom Sawyer.

3:10 p. m.—Invalid craves entertainment. Mother tells stories till—

3:40 p. m.—What time patient solicits toasted muffins for tea. Muffins denied emphatically.

4 p. m.—Accustomed contention takes place.

4:10 p. m.—Invalid victor.

4:30 p. m.—Mother too weary even to take tea but patient regales himself or hot muffins.

5 p. m.—Vinegar bath leaves patient greatly refreshed. Mother dead tired.

5:30 p. m.—Medicine poured out—

Scene II: Second-floor landing, ten minutes later.

Mrs. Mortimer (a wreck of her former self, to maid)—Hodgetts, go at once—this moment, to Dr. Weldon, and ask him to send me the nurse he spoke of, instantly. I find I shall require her after all.—M. S. B., in Black & White.

DOSING SICK CHILDREN.

Some Suggestions as to How to Administer Medicine—Force Should Be Last Resort.

That much harm results from the excessive use of medicine is a fact which nobody will dispute, and it is a rule with the best physicians to give little or none when it can be avoided. To this is due much of the success of homeopathy, for in many cases nature requires only careful nursing in order to effect a cure. Nevertheless, there are cases in which the administration of a dose of medicine is a matter of life and death—the sole hope of recovery. Then it is, if the patient be a child, that the mother reaps her reward if she has taught the child to obey, since the dose is taken without trouble or resistance. It is worse than folly to deceive a child with the pretense that nauseous medicine is palatable; the deception may avail once, but the little one loses all faith in the assurance, and it counts for naught. Far wiser to tell him honestly that it tastes badly, but it is to do him good, and that as soon as it is taken he shall have something to "take the taste out of his mouth," something, if possible, which he especially likes. The pellets in which so many of the modern medicines are given are far easier to take than were the huge pills of the last generation, and it is not often that a bitter dose is absolutely necessary. When the little patient must be forced to take the dose, do so quietly and firmly; hold the hands and nose while the spoon presses down the tongue. In the effort to breathe, the medicine, which should be in liquid form, will be swallowed. A medicine glass is much better than a spoon, and less apt to spill the contents. It may also be used as a means of compulsion by turning it up so as to stop the supply of air; at the first gasp for breath the medicine will be taken, and the glass may be removed.

Often a struggle with the patient will do more harm than good; moreover, medicine thus given is apt to be rejected by the stomach. In such case the physician must be appealed to. It is easier to coax a child than to drive it, and patient, gentle reasoning is seldom without effect. Force should be used only as a last resort.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Marriage Law in Greece.

In ancient Greece a law provided that if a man divorced his wife he could not subsequently marry a woman younger than his discarded partner.

BIG GUNS SHORT LIVED.

They Have to Be Sent Back to the Shop After the One Hundredth Firing.

"The life of a gun is one of the most unsatisfactory things about it," remarked an Ordnance officer in discussing the war question, "and though a number of experiments have been made in connection therewith there is no absolute certainty as to the results. A general rule has been arrived at which is thought to be on the safe side of the matter, and that is that the modern steel gun should not be fired more than 100 times. After that, it matters not what the emergency may be, it is safer to dismantle the gun and send it back to the shop than to risk firing it, for the explosion of a gun is a decidedly and extensively dangerous occurrence to all in its immediate locality. The firing of a gun causes the steel to crystallize, and thereby becomes brittle as a file. So far as has yet been discovered, there is no remedy for it. It is not exactly a total loss after a gun has become dead, for the steel can be used for thousands of things in the way of bolts, braces and the like for new work and for repairs.

A modern gun is an expensive affair, running from $75,000 way up. It is equally expensive to keep it in operation, the cost for each cartridge sent from it being over $1,000, which does not include the putting of the gun on its emplacement or taking it down, nor the thousands of dollars necessarily expended in paying salaries and subsistence of the officers and men who operate it. This crystallization of the metal is one of the mysteries of the science of ordnance. The gun could be revived to some extent by heating it to a white heat and allowing it to cool off slowly, but the treatment is not exactly satisfactory or even approximately certain as to the results. It has been said of us as of other nations, that if we kept every gun we own in actual firing operation for even 24 hours the powder and shell bill would bankrupt us, and there is some truth in it. This crystallization of the metal is not confined to guns, however. The same thing occurs in the journals or axles used on the railroad cars. It is for that reason that careful railroads put on new axles every five or six years. In Europe there are laws upon the subject, though it is custom with us. In Germany it is unlawful to use an axle on passenger cars more than four years, though the limitation on freight cars is not so rigid. As with the off-fired gun, the steel in the journal becomes so brittle by the crystallization in consequence of its use that it is liable to snap in a dozen places any time after its life is ended.—Washington Star.

GEN. LEE'S RECORD.

The Sturdy American's Military Ac-cendry and His Career in the Confederate Army.

Fitzhugh Lee, as is well known, was an officer in the confederate army during the civil war, and in case of his appointment as major general of volunteers he would enter on his duties as an experienced military man. Gen. Lee's record and ancestry are both military. He is a nephew of Gen. Robert E. Lee and a grandson of Col. Henry Lee, the revolutionary commander. He was born at Clermont, Fairfax county, Va., on November 19, 1835, and was graduated at West Point in 1856. He was severely wounded in a fight with Indians, and in May, 1860, he was ordered to report at West Point as instructor of cavalry. At the beginning of the civil war, in 1861, he resigned his commission in the United States army and entered the confederate service. At first he was placed on staff duty, and was adjutant general of Ewell's brigade until September, 1861, when he was made lieutenant colonel of the First Virginia cavalry, and later was promoted to the rank of colonel. In all of the campaigns of northern Virginia he took a prominent part. On July 25, 1862, he was made brigadier general, and on September 3, 1863, he was appointed major general. In the battle of Winchester, on September 19, 1864, three horses were shot under him and he was disabled by a severe wound which kept him from duty for several months.

In March, 1865, he was placed in command of the whole cavalry corps of the army of northern Virginia, and a month later he surrendered to Gen. Meade at Farmville, after which he retired to his home in Stafford county. In 1874 he made a speech at Bunker Hill, which attracted wide attention. In the winter and spring of 1882-83 he made a tour through the southern states in the interest of the Southern Historical society. In 1885, after a spirited campaign, he defeated John S. Wise, readjuster, for governor of Virginia.—N. Y. Tribune.

Boston Common's Gate.

Massive ornamental iron gates, which were never closed, and the posts supporting them and bearing tall lanterns, all of which have stood for years at one of the entrances to Boston common and now have given way because of the subway excavations, are to be re-erected at the entrance to the site of the confederate military prison at Andersonville, Ga. When originally placed the gates were "dedicated" by Gov. John A. Andrew, of Massachusetts.—Chicago Tribune.

Deadly Insult to a Tuscan.

Largest Freight Steamer.

QUICKSAND IN WELLS.

A Method for Excluding It Which Has Been Used with Success in Michigan and Indiana.

The writer has had large experience in sinking wells in the sandy subsoils of Michigan and northern Indiana. In early days it was no uncommon thing for the well to cave in even before quicksand was reached, and bury the workman. Some genius invented the following method, which is now in almost universal use in those districts where there is quicksand when the water is reached and where there is danger from the sand or light soil caving in upon the workman:

Construct out of inch boards a ring of the desired diameter, usually about three feet in the clear, by cutting sections of the wooden circle desired out of inch boards. Five or six sections will be required for the circle. Two thicknesses of these board circles are required, one nailed upon the other, with the joints of the sections broken. This will give a wooden ring a little over four and one-half inches wide, three feet in the clear or thereabout, and two inches thick.

As soon as there are indications of caving, this wooden ring is put in the bottom of the well and a four-inch wall made of brick is built upon it. Care should be taken to have the wooden ring about one-half inch larger on the outside than the outside diameter of the brick wall. In the localities named, well brick could be purchased, and they are better than common brick because the joints are less open; but common brick can be used by clipping the inside corners of the brick a little.

If quick is likely to be reached, four feet of the well which is first put in is laid in cement mortar to exclude it. The rest of the well will not need mortar. Having made the workman safe by a brick circular wall around him, he proceeds to dig and undermine the ring, first on one side a little and then on the other side, and the ring, with its superincumbent weight of brick, follows, and other bricks are put on the top. When the water and the quicksand are reached, no attempt is made to bail the water out. The workman proceeds as before, except that a dipper is provided for dipping up the quicksand in the bottom of the well. When the water reaches the armpits of the workman, the well is considered complete. Afterwards, should the water become low, the well is deepened by digging out the sand from it and under the ring, and more bricks are laid on the top. Thousands of these wells thus constructed may be found in the districts above referred to.

Fig. 1 shows the wooden circle, the heavy lines where the top sections of the prepared circular pieces of board meet, the light lines where the ends meet. Fig. 2 shows how the joints of the two sections of the circle are broken. Fig. 3 shows the wall laid of common unclipped bricks.—L. P. Roberts, in Country Gentleman.

PLAN FOR HAY BARN.

How to Build One Large Enough to Hold a Hundred Tons or More at Small Expense.

The cut shows the details of construction of a modern hay barn. The plan shown is for a barn 40 feet wide, 50 feet long, and with posts 15 feet high, with self-supporting roof. As a hay barn is called for, it is unnecessary to have any floor for driving space. The hay should be carried from the wagon to the opening in the end of the barn by means of a carrier or sling, and then upon the track, the end of which is shown, the hay is carried to any part of the barn desired. The sill, A, A, should be of eight by eight material. The beams B and C should also be eight by eight, and morticed into the posts at the corners.

HOW TO BUILD A HAY BARN.

ners and in the center. These beams serve as braces, and must be securely fastened, or the barn will spread. One danger which must be guarded against will be the bulging of the ends. To secure these, strong steel rods should run from the side plates, the ends of which are shown at the top of the posts. These steel rods will cut off a portion of the corner, as they should be fastened about ten feet from the ends of the plates. The details shown will make it plain to a builder how the barn is to be constructed.—Rural New Yorker.

Locations for Bee Hives.

Many people fail of success with bees because they do not place the hives right. If too shaded the bees are likely to be attacked by the moth miller, which breeds those worms that destroy the honey. It is well to have the bees up early, so the hives should front to the east, so as to catch the first rays of the morning sun. Either a well-roofed, low building should be put up as a bee stand, or the hives should be set on a bench under a tree all through the summer. In winter it is not best that bees should see sunlight. If an underground cellar out of doors can be fitted up where the temperature may be kept below freezing all the time, it will be much better than the warmer house cellar.—American Cultivator.

Charcoal for the Pigs.

Pigs that are fattening will often eat charcoal quite greedily. That from the corn is probably the best, as the cob contains a very considerable amount of potash, which corrects the acidity of the stomach. Corn is a very heavy and rich grain and hard of digestion for any animal. In the quantities that fattening pigs eat of corn it is no wonder if the stomachs are cloyed. A little charcoal will greatly improve their appetite. Even pigs that are not fattening will eat some charcoal. It has some nutrition, and they are in no danger of eating too much.—Prairie Farmer.

WHY THE COOK FELT HURT.

Her Employer Was Not Laid Up from Overeating and She Felt Slighted.

A lady had a cook who gave her every satisfaction and she was under the impression that the cook was equally satisfied with her place. But one morning, to the lady's intense surprise, the cook gave her the usual month's notice.

"What do you want to leave for, Jane?" asked her mistress. "I am very much pleased with you, and I thought you were quite comfortable here."

"Yes, mum, I'm comfortable enough in a way, but—"

The cook hesitated and fidgeted about. "But what?" queried her mistress.

"Well, mum," she blurted out, "the fact is the master doesn't seem to 'preciate my cookery, and I can't stop in a place where my efforts to please are wasted; so I'd rather go, mum."

"But that makes you think that your master doesn't appreciate your cookery? Has he ever complained to you?" asked the lady.

"No, mum, but my late master was always being laid up through overeating," he said he couldn't help doing so because my cookery was so delicious—but master here hasn't been laid up once all the three months I've been with you, and that's just what I love me so, mum!"—Boston Traveler.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

The following case was printed originally in The Monitor, a newspaper published at Meaford, Ontario. Doubts were raised as to its truthfulness, consequently a close watch was kept on the case for two years and the original statement has now been completely verified.

Mr. Petch had been a hopeless paralytic for five years. His case had been well known. He was confined to his bed, was bloated almost beyond recognition, and could not take solid food. Doctors called the disease spinal sclerosis, and all said he could not live. The Canadian Mutual Life Association, after a thorough examination, paid him his total disability claim of $1,600, regarding him as forever incurable.

For three years he lingered in this condition. After taking some of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People there was a slight change, a tendency to sweat freely. Next came a little feeling in his limbs. This extended, followed by a pricking sensation, until at last the blood began to course freely and vigorously through his body. Soon he was restored to his old time health.

A reporter for The Monitor recently called on Mr. Petch again and was told:

"You may say there is no doubt as to my cure being permanent. I am in better health than when I gave you the first interview and certainly attribute my cure to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

"To these pills I owe my release from the living death, and I shall always bless the day I was induced to take them."

Such is the history of one of the most remarkable cases in modern times. In the face of such testimony, can anyone say that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are not entitled to the careful consideration of every sufferer from man, woman or child? Is not the case, in truth, a miracle of modern medicine?

These pills are sold by all druggists and are considered by them to be one of the most valuable remedial agents known to science.

ANOTHER PATRIOT.

He Wanted Everything Military and Naval on the Bill of Fare.

Puffly is too old and there is too much of him to go to the war, but he never loses a chance to voice his patriotism.

"Pork and beans," he mumbled over the restaurant menu the other day. "Say, waiter, are these the regular army beans?"

"Yes, sah. Also de reg'lar army pork."

"Bring me some. What's this? Spanish bun? A big order of consomme, waiter. Break a couple of these Spanish buns into it. That's where they belong. Then throw the whole thing away."

After Puffly glared around to see whether anyone challenged this direction, he chuckled an order for shelled peas.

"Fruit?" he responded later to the waiter, "certainly," and he fairly shouted that he wanted a couple of naval oranges.

"That's a hit," he commended to himself. "Most of these chumps that are not up with the times would have simply ordered oranges." Then he heaved another inspiration, and, taking in a full breath, he roared: "And say, waiter, bring me a couple of Manila cheroots." Everybody within hearing applauded and Puffly waved both hands at his coat with national emblems attached.

"Game ole bilhd dat," whispered the waiter just loud enough to be heard all over the place. Puffly gave no sign that he heard, but left a half-dollar on the table and walked out so straight that he leaned back.—Detroit Free Press.

BEWARE OF MORPHINE.

Mrs. Pinkham's Urgent Appeal to Suffering Women.

She Asks Them to Seek Permanent Cures and Not Mere Temporary Relief From Pain.

Special forms of suffering lead many a woman to acquire the morphine habit.

One of these forms of suffering is a dull, persistent pain in the side, accompanied by heat and throbbing. There is disinclination to work, because work only increases the pain.

This is only one symptom of a chain of troubles; she has others she cannot bear to confide to her physician, for fear of an examination, the terror of all sensitive, modest women.

The physician, meantime, knows her condition, but cannot combat her shrinking terror. He yields to her supplication for something to relieve the pain. He gives her a few morphine tablets, with very grave caution as to their use. Foolish woman! She thinks morphine will help her right along; she becomes its slave!

A wise and a generous physician had such a case; he told his patient he could do nothing for her, as she was too nervous to undergo an examination. In despair, she went to visit a friend. She said to her, "Don't give yourself up; just go to the nearest druggist's and buy a bottle of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It will build you up. You will begin to feel better with the first bottle." She did so, and after the fifth bottle her health was re-established. Here is her own letter about it:</

SCARED THE RED MEN

HOW A CROWD OF CATTLEMEN BROKE UP A GHOST DANCE.

A Roman Catholic Bombardment That Stampeded the Three Hundred Braves and Started Them on a Run That Lasted Into the Next Day.

"We never called Rooney by the name of Jack, although his Christian name was John, and in the cattle country they were few men named after Christ's chief disciple who was not known as Jack. We always called him John Rooney. The last I ever heard of him he was living up in Nebraska, not far from Ogallala, on the south fork of the Platte, just after the stream leaves the Colorado line."

Thus discoursed a former cattleman, who is now pursuing a peaceful and commonplace life in Kansas City, the other evening. He was talking of life on the big cattle range in the days when the fame of Dodge City, Abilene, Hayes City and Ellis was on the wane as tough towns of Kansas and their upbuilding as law abiding communities had begun.

"In them days," he continued, "our openings for fun was less frequent than national holidays are at present. It was mostly hard riding, and lots of it. It gives us all a sort of yearning to bust loose the cinches and raise hell at the first opportunity, and sometimes the way we did it was as unique as they was startling. The time I speak of in this particular yarn was as grazing a big bunch of cattle, mostly long horns, in the Cherokee strip, along the north fork of the Canadian river, within a day's riding of old Fort Supply. The Osages and some other tribes used to come in there for their green corn and harvest dances and have highfalootin' ole times in general. We all remarks this and speaks of it sorter scornful because we did not like Indians much now. When I say this, I don't mean that Rooney was the one to put the quirt to the Indians. He was overquint on the subject. He generally was peace-fallike and calm. He was a thinker, Rooney was, and with some schooling and a little politics would have been a great man in the city I low."

"About this time the camp begins to get short on grub, and some four or five of the boys was sent to Medicine Lodge, across the Kansas line, with wagons to bring back a supply of necessities. Kansas was not a prohibition state then, and you could get most any kind of stimulant in Medicine Lodge—that is to say, they had rye and Bourbon whiskey, and I suppose they also had beer. In them days I never could see the virtues of beer."

"As I was saying, you could get about any kind of liquor you wanted in Medicine Lodge, and so we kept pretty well wet. Rooney here displayed his sagacity. While we all had forgotten all about them pesky Indians he comes in one day we was to leave and puts in to the wagon about 20 of them big roman candles that shoot ten times, you know, each shot a big ball of yellow, red or bluish flame."

"What you going to do with them Fourth of July fixings now?" we all asks, seeing as how it was getting closer to Thanksgiving."

"Never you mind that," said John, kinder winking his eye southeast."

"So we all was mighty curious during the trip back to the Canadian, but says nothing. A few days after we gets back them Indians begins gathering for a annual feast of some kind, and then one night they prepares for one of them dances. Of course, all of the boys what could be spared wanted off to see the monkey business of them redskins. Then John Rooney, he called a council of war and unfolded the secret of them roman candles what he bought at Medicine Lodge. He tells all the boys, some 15 in number, to stay with him, and leads the way to the timber, where the ghost dance was going on. We all takes one of them roman candles and no one speaks a word or coughs or makes any loud signs."

"When them 300 braves was a-tearing up the ground and yelling at the height of the dance, we gets the word from Rooney and lights up them candles simultaneous, and they begin shooting fire and brimstone into them Indians sure enough. The boys wasn't used to shooting off them things and was about half scared themselves at the devilish hissing and the sparks, but them Indians—well, I can't say what they thought, but it was plain how they acted. Some of 'em took to the other side of the woods, some jumped straight up, a lot went for the north fork of the Canadian, running so fast it 'ud take four men to see 'em. Stop then? Well, I guess not. They jumped right in and swum for dear life. They never stopped to see that the blamed fire had quit, and fellers working on the range the other side of the fork said they saw them running the next morning when they was just starting their day's riding."

"That night's devilment like to got us all into trouble, though, and the most of us discreetly struck out for Kansas to avoid any unpleasant consequences. But laugh—say, I never laughed so in my life."—Kansas City Star.

A Good Law.

A law has just been passed in France forbidding any one to give solid food to infants under a year old without the written authority of a physician. In France, too, the long rubber tubes to feeding bottles are forbidden under heavy penalties. Everywhere people are warned not to use them, the reason being that it is impossible to keep them properly sterilized.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure

Cures a Prominent Attorney.

M. R. C. PHELPS, the leading pension attorney of Belfast, N. Y., writes: "I was discharged from the army on account of ill health, and suffered from heart trouble ever since. I frequently had fainting and smothering spells. My form was bent as a man of 60. I constantly wore an overcoat, even in summer, for fear of taking cold. I could not attend to my business. My rest was broken by severe pains about the heart and left shoulder. Three years ago I commenced using Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, notwithstanding I had used so much patent medicine and taken drugs from doctors for years without being helped. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure restored me to health. It is truly a wonderful medicine and it affords me much pleasure to recommend this remedy to everyone."

Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on diseases of the heart and nerves free. Address, DR. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

ENGLAND'S PREMIER.

WHAT IT MEANS TO BE THE BRITISH PRIME MINISTER.

Nowhere Else In the World Is There Any Position at Once So Powerful and So Anomalous—The Office Is Without Legal Foundation.

Nowhere else in the world is there any position at once so powerful and so anomalous. So long as he remains prime minister the premier of the United Kingdom is possessed of more real power than any single individual, unless it be the czar or the president of the United States.

Yet, great as is the power of prime minister, the office has no foundation on law. The prime minister is quite as unknown to the law as is the cabinet. If a legal pedant, blind to all facts not in the statutes or the textbooks of the common law, were asked to define the office of prime minister and to describe the cabinet, he would be utterly at a loss.

In theory the prime minister is only a privy councillor at the head of a department of state who is specially in the sovereign's confidence and who usually presides at an informal gathering of certain of the privy councillors who happen to hold offices of state—a gathering which is called the cabinet. That is the furthest which the legal pedant of our thought would dare to go. Yet, of course, the prime minister is, in fact, far more than the mere chairman of the cabinet.

The cabinet, no doubt, has a great deal of power, but even if it were true once it is certainly not true now that England is governed by a committee of 15 or 16 persons.

The prime minister, as a rule, makes his cabinet. He is commissioned by the queen to form a cabinet, because he is the man whom she considers to possess the confidence of a majority of the house of commons. He forms his cabinet by asking certain members of the two houses to hold the great offices of state. He might do this in one day and without consulting any one.

As a matter of fact, what usually happens is this: As soon as the commission to form a government has been received, the prime minister takes into his confidence the two or three who will hold the chief offices, and they talk together over the other names. When a man is decided upon, he, as a rule, joins the conclave and helps to consult as to men and places, and so the cabinet gradually evolves itself. No doubt, as generally happens in this world, the prime minister's choice is never really free.

Certain men must be in the cabinet, whatever happens, and hence they may be said not to be chosen by the premier, but to be ministers in their own right. In spite, however, of this, the fact that they are asked to serve by the premier makes them feel his superiority. When the cabinet is made, the theory of the unwritten constitution is that the cabinet governs. In reality it seldom does anything of the kind.

Each cabinet minister has very great power in his own department, but the cabinet as a cabinet can do little. Since, however, it knows everything that is going on it can exercise a great deal of indirect power. The previous knowledge that the majority of the cabinet would like or dislike a particular policy has a great influence, but still the cabinet does not rule. The prime minister summons, presides over and largely controls the cabinet meetings. If a vacancy occurs, he fills it up, and so can promote from the lower to the higher offices.

Then he can and does confer with his colleagues in regard to the business of their departments, and so has a hold upon the whole machine of government. Sir Robert Peel saw every member of his cabinet separately every day. Again, if there be a difference between two other members of the government, the premier decides. If there be an irreconcilable difference between himself and a minister, it is the minister and not the premier who resigns.

Lastly, the prime minister can, by resigning himself, dissolve the whole ministry. These things, small in themselves, taken together, make the prime minister's position what it is. He makes and can unmake a cabinet. He presides over it, and he has the right to advise in regard to every department, though this right is of course seldom exercised, and he has secured to him beforehand the support of the rank and file or of any cabinet if it comes to a struggle between him and a colleague, because the rank and file know that if the premier is beaten he has it in his power to upset the whole machine of government.

Hence the voices of those who want to keep in office are always found on the side of the premier.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Russian Miracle.

An iconoclast at a Russian convent has been hoist with his own petard in a significant way. An infernal machine was set near a picture of the Virgin Mary, in a convent at Kursk, the picture having a reputation for working miraculous cures. The machine exploded in due time and wrecked the surroundings, demolishing a cast iron screen round the picture, damaging doors and breaking down a wall, but the picture itself escaped unhurt. If there ever was any doubt among the faithful at the Shamski convent as to the wonder working properties of their holy picture, it will be dispelled by this.—St. James Gazette.

During about 700 years the Latin language was the language of court, camp and polite society from the river Tweed, in Scotland, to the Euphrates, in Asia, and from the Crimea or Chersonese, in the Black sea, to the pillars of Hercules, at the western extremity of the Mediterranean.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.
There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and secures pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail, upon receipt of three two-cent stamps to cover cost of postage on the bottle. Mention The Paris (Ky.) News and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The proprietors of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this offer. (25p-1m)
